ABOUT THE INSTITUTE

The Green Communities Leadership Institute (GCLI) is a first-of-its-kind leadership development opportunity for mid-career professionals. This unique training takes place in March with two months of online learning in January and February. Led by green industry volunteer leaders from across the US, GCLI provides the opportunity for attendees to work with experts from all sectors -- evolving their personal and professional leadership skills that advance them to lead within their organizations, communities, and across the industry. Institute graduates represent 30+ cities in 20+ states across public, private, academic, and nonprofit organizations. With your help, we can support and grow these leaders today and into the future.

TESTIMONIALS FROM GCLI GRADUATES

"This experience was more impactful than I could have imagined. I am already applying what I learned, and expect to continue applying this and evolving as a leader for a long time."

"A fantastic opportunity to meet so many leaders making a difference and taking the time to realize their own value."

"The training is in-depth and collaborative and tons of fun. We left inspired and prepared to make a big difference in our world."

HOW YOUR SUPPORT MAKES A DIFFERENCE

Across the US and the world, there is a dire need for increased capacity, diversity, and leadership to advance climate action in our communities. This Institute recognizes the need and catalyzes change where it is needed most by investing in professionals who are already leading in their industries and their communities. Your investment in this Institute is multi-faceted: your support grows the Institute's impact across sectors and in more communities across the US and beyond; supports a diverse and talented instructional pool; and shows your commitment to leadership and development to benefit your company and industry.

In addition to your contribution to the Institute, your company's benefits include increased exposure and recognition as a leader in environmental, social, and corporate governance.

We're excited to have you join with us in advancing the impact of GCLI to all corners of the US – and in the future, across the world.
